SOVIET ARMIES FACING MAJOR TEST IN WAR

British See Grave Threat As Germans Make Sweeping Claims Of Success

LONDON—(UP) — British military circles today described the German drive on Moscow as the gravest threat to the allies since Dunkirk and indicated that neither a British offensive blow in the west nor the British-American war aid now en route to Russia would affect the immediate outcome.

In other words, it was indicated, the battle in Russia at the moment is entirely up to the Red army.

Pact Reported

BERLIN — (UP)—A Nazi source today announced that Germany and Turkey have signed a new economic pact at Ankara. The pact is in force until March 31, 1934, the announcement said.

By UNITED PRESS

Adolf Hitler's third and greatest offensive against Russia reached flood tide today.

A stream of proclamations, communiques and announcements from Berlin claimed Nazi forces have smashed to within 125 miles or closer of Moscow; that the whole Russian front has been broken; that 60 to 70 Soviet divisions, possibly 1,000,000 men have been surrounded; that Soviet military power has been crushed.

Today was the eighth day of the German offensive.

The picture painted in Berlin was of hordes of Nazi forces advancing swiftly toward Moscow under sunny skies and along dry roads, leaving behind them the encircled and pulverized armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's central front.

To the north, Berlin said, Mar-

Japs Hint Of New War Move

Apparent German Success Renews Speculation As To New Asian Developments

TOKYO (UP)—Japanese spokesmen and newspapers today criticized the "willfull, arrogant" actions of the United States and warned that the war "is likely to spread to other regions" of the world at any moment.

Entry of the United States into the war, a spokesman said, would "bring ruin" to civilization and might even involve America in a deadlock.

(The Japanese statements followed German claims that the Russian army had been destroyed as a fighting force on the eastern front, renewing speculation on the possibility of a new move by Japan in the Far East in event of collapse of the Soviet forces).

The new warning of possible war moves in the Pacific came as Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye went to the palace to report to Emperor Hirohito of the general state of affairs.

In a nation-wide radio broadcast, Commander Shinichi Kondo, chief of the first section of the cabinet of information bureau, said that: "because of developments in the past few months war is likely to spread to other regions at any moment."

County Farmers Asked To Increase Dairy, Poultry, Pork Yield For Defense.

Need for increased production of many farm commodities, principally dairy products, poultry products and pork, was stressed Wednesday by L. R. Enzler, chairman of the El Dorado County USDA Defense Board, upon his return from a two-day meeting of California farm leaders in Berkeley, at which county production goals were established in the United States Department of Agriculture's "Food-for-Freedom" campaign.

El Dorado County goals in the 1942 program call for an increase of 3 per cent in cows, 4 per cent in milk, 15 per cent in eggs, hogs 6 per cent for slaughter, and 12 per cent in number of head.

Every farmer in the county will be contacted between now and November 15 and given an opportunity to cooperate with the food production program, Enzler said. Those who wish to cooperate will be assisted in drawing up farm plans that will aid them in meeting the production goals for El Dorado County.

To insure that a fair market price can be obtained for the additional foodstuffs produced, Enzler pointed out, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has proclaimed that during 1942 he will, within the funds at his command, support a price of not less than 85 per cent of parity for hogs, eggs, evaporated milk, dry skim milk, cheese, and chickens. The secretary is also authorized to extend this protection to other commodities if the need arises.

"This Food-for-Freedom," declared Enzler, "has been planned to assure the production of enough of every farm commodity needed to win the war for democracy. The goals set are based partly upon what the 1942 markets will take, but always upon what the United States must have for itself and for the nations it is aiding in the fight for freedom."

SMASHING RUSSIAN CENTRAL ARMY, HITLER OBJECTIVE

Present Battle Probably Involves More Men, Arms And Machines Than Any Ever Fought: War, Of A Certainty, Will Continue Into '42

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

Of The United Press War Desk

Aside from military implications, an interesting point about today's war news is Adolf Hitler's tacit admission that he plans no further moves until 1942, least of all an attack on Britain.

The battle of Russia is not yet over, nor is Russia on the verge of being knocked completely out of the war before this winter, as Germany's claims would indicate.

Russia's situation is admittedly serious. The cream of her army and the best of her equipment are now threatened by Hitler's supreme drive on the central front. It has developed into one of history's great battles. It is probably on a larger scale, counted in terms of men, arms and machines, than any ever fought.

Hitler's objective, is not primarily the capture of Moscow, but to break the central Russian army. Once that is done, the armies of the north and south will be separated. They can be dealt with separately and probably with success. But not necessarily now.

Suppose the picture turns out to be this way—Russia is defeated and eliminated as a "second front" for Britain. The situation would be no worse than it was before last June 22, when Russia was Hitler's ally. It would in some ways be better.

Hitler unquestionably has used up a staggering amount of manpower, equipment, airplanes, tanks, guns and supply reserves—notably oil—in the Russian campaign. He will have to pause for breath before undertaking another major venture.

It is true that he would have added a vast source of potential supply in western Russia and the Ukraine. It will be of little immediate value, however. The Russians have destroyed and are destroying factories, power sources and anything else of value to the Germans as they retreat. It will take a long while to get things back into useful production. As to food, the Germans are likely to have a hard time getting the Russian peasant to produce for them.

So the war is going into next year, whether or not the Russians are defeated. That is a less a prediction than a statement of obvious fact.

Britain meanwhile gets stronger and the restless people of Europe more rebellious. The invasion of Britain seems more remote than ever and the progress of the battle of the Atlantic indicates that she is not likely to be starved out, as long as American supplies keep coming.

NEW TYPE OF SAW OPERATED BY GAS ENGINE INCREASES YIELD IN TIMBER CUT

An electrically driven falling and bucking saw which, according to J. E. Hassler, former El Dorado County lumberman, the inventor, will fall from 125,000 to 175,000 feet a day, has been placed in use in the woods of the county says a Sacramento report.

The machine is operated by three men and can be used in a radius of 1,000 feet from the gasoline driven generator, which furnishes the power.

Under present conditions two fallers cut from 12,000 to 15,000 feet a day by hand methods.

The machine can make cuts level with the ground, thereby eliminating the stumps. This allows freer operation of tractors.

Hassler said by cutting at ground level about 6 per cent of the tree is gained. This portion of the tree, free of knots, generally is the most desirable part and brings the highest price.

Water District's Tax Unchanged

The new tax rate for El Dorado Irrigation District, recently approved by the board of directors, will be the same as last year and the year before, eighty cents per hundred dollars of the land valuable for agricultural purposes.

In reporting the tax rate, Walter Jenkinson, secretary-manager of the district, noted that the district was unable to obtain this year the 200 to 400 inches of water previously obtained from the P. G. & E. Company.

The district was able to operate without this water this year owing to several factors, he said. Among these were a favorable irrigation year and a sustained good stream flow, and the conservation of water resulting from having lined a number of the ditches of the district.

CONSTRUCTION HALT CALLED BY U. S.

Priorities Board Bans New Building Except For Health Or Defense

WASHINGTON — (UP) — in a drastic move to conserve critical defense materials, the supply priorities and allocations board ruled today that no new public or private constructions can be started unless they are essential for defense or the health and safety of the people.

Iron Priority

WASHINGTON — (UP)—Priorities Director Donald M. Nelson, seeking to avert a situation that threatened to shut down or curtail steel mill operations, signed, signed an order today placing all iron and steel scrap under priority control.

This action was taken after a number of steel mills reported that they had less than a week's supply of scrap, which is required in making steel.

One of the most drastic provisions in the order provides that the priority director may issue specific directions to any persons as to the source, destination, or amount of scrap to be delivered or acquired by anyone.

This phase of the order was designed to relieve serious day-to-day shortages.

The scrap order requires producers, dealers, brokers and consumers to make reports to the priorities division.

Neutrality Act Change Drafted

Repeal Of Sections Six And Two To Be Proposed In House

WASHINGTON, (UP) — President Roosevelt sends to congress today a message requesting amendment of the neutrality act to be followed within minutes by introduction of legislation to permit the arming of American merchant vessels against Axis raiders.

Final house action on that amendment is scheduled for one week from today or tomorrow. The amending legislation later may be expanded to enable our armed ships to enter belligerent ports including those of Great Britain in all-out reinforcement of the empire life line.

Minority isolationists have organized to oppose today's neutrality act amendment which they characterize variously as a war measure and a declaration of war. But congressional leaders have assured Mr. Roosevelt that they have the votes to put guns on the ships.

First action on neutrality is scheduled in the house where the chairman, Sol Bloom, D., N. Y., of the foreign affairs committee is ready with two amendment drafts. One would repeal section six of the act which prohibits the arming of merchant ships. The other would repeal sections six and two, the latter of which authorizes establishment of combat zones and forbids our merchant vessels to enter ports so designated.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Love in Disguise

by MARY KEAS

Copr. 1935 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Peggy O'Toole whose parents died after migrating from Dublin to New York, has grown up in humble circumstances. Her mother had married her father, an Irish rebel, against the wishes of her wealthy parents, had become estranged from them, and had never seen them again. Peggy learns from a lawyer that her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greer, are still alive are in America, and want to get in touch with her. Bitter toward them, she refuses to see them. Meanwhile, she has become governess to the little grandchild of wealthy old Peter Meredith, and has become engaged to a young taxi-driver, Jimmie Butler. Then, one night, she discovers that Jimmie is George Meredith, prodigal son of old Peter. While drunk, he behaves like a cad. She breaks their engagement and, immediately afterward, is badly injured when struck by a car. The doctors say she may never walk again. Her grandparents learn of the accident and come to the hospital.

CHAPTER XVIII

BIT by bit, as she improved, Peggy was told by her nurse all that had happened.

"I must have been such a bother," she whispered.

"Now, Miss O'Toole!" the nurse said briskly. "Don't you worry yourself with thoughts like that. All you must think about now is getting well, for the sake of all your dear friends — and your grandparents. . . ."

"My — my grandparents?" Peggy said dazedly, staring at the nurse.

The Greers had called at the hospital every day but, since Peggy had recovered consciousness they had not been allowed to see her. The doctor, discovering the situation that existed between his patient and her only relatives, had not wished her to undergo the strain of her first meeting with them until she had egained a bit of her strength.

Now, however, he had decided that she was strong enough to receive them, and had told the nurse to prepare her for the meeting.

The nurse did so. "They've come here every day since the accident," she concluded. "They are so anxious to see you, and the doctor said that today they may." She glanced at her watch. "In fact, if they come at their regular time they should be here shortly."

Peggy didn't answer. She closed her eyes. This news was a bit startling, but she felt too tired at the moment to think about it. Later . . .

SHE must have dozed, for when she opened her eyes again, a gentle-faced old lady was sitting beside the bed, and a tall, handsome old man was standing behind her.

Peggy gazed at them, without speaking. For a long time, her eyes remained on Mrs. Greer.

Finally, she whispered, "You — you look like Mother . . ."

Mrs. Greer was weeping. She reached for Peggy's thin hand.

"Peggy dear . . it — it has taken us a long time to find you . . ."

"Mother — wrote — you." Peggy said slowly, reproach in her tone despite her weakened condition "She told me — she never heard from you . . ."

"Her letter, telling us of your birth, followed us halfway around the world." Mrs. Greer explained between tears. "When it finally reached us, on our return home we tried to get in touch with her but she had moved. Your — your father was in hiding at the time, and his friends would not betray his whereabouts even to us. We tried again and again to find her, but we couldn't — until, at last, in a roundabout way we learned that she had died . . over here . . ." The old lady broke off, too overcome to go on.

Mr. Greer, spoke, then for the first time.

"You must forgive us, Peggy," he said gently. "We — we were unfair to your father — we misjudged him. We thought at first that we could not forgive Marguerite — your mother — for marrying him We behaved — shamefully. But we suffered for it. We bitterly regretted what we had done but by then — it was too late. We had — lost our daughter — and we never found her . . ."

He paused, before continuing "We want you to take her place — to let us do for you what we failed to do for her We want you to come to us — to let us take care of you . . ."

Peggy was silent. Wonderingly she realized that, now that she had at last come face to face with her grandparents, she no longer felt bitter toward them. All that seemed to have been washed away . . . so much had happened . . . Besides, how could she hold a grudge against two old people so gentle as these?

But they were still strangers to her. This was all so sudden and overwhelming. She must get to know them better before she could know whether she would want to make her home with them.

She smiled. "Later . . ." she whispered. "Not now . . ."

The nurse came in, then, to tell the Greers they must leave. They must not tire Peggy too much on their first visit.

Mrs. Greer, rising, stooped to kiss Peggy on the forehead.

"Goodby, dear," she said softly "But we'll be back — soon."

"Yes," said Peggy. "Soon . . ."

THE next day, Jimmie came to see her. Since his one visit, the day he had found her asleep, he had stayed away — purposely. He had been afraid to see her — uncertain what he could say to her And, knowing that their meeting was bound to be painful, he had realized that he should postpone it until she was a bit stronger.

He had longed to rush to her and beg her forgiveness — to accuse himself of the responsibility for her accident — to tell her that he would gladly give his life if only he could undo what had happened. But his reason told him that he mustn't — that it would only make matters worse to subject her to an emotional scene while she was so ill.

Then, too, there was her discovery, that night of the accident that he was not Jimmie Butler, a taxi-driver — but George Meredith, prodigal son of her employer Oh so much had happened on that dreadful night! There was so much to be explained! And so little he could say in explanation!

As for Peggy, with the return of consciousness, had returned the memory of what she had suffered that night. The accident had not wiped it out. It was still with her — though not so acute as before.

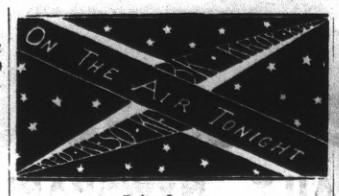

The nurse had told her that Jimmie had been to see her but she was glad that she had been asleep. She did not want to see him.

Hence, when he at last came again, it was a brief and unhappy meeting. He falteringly tried to express the remorse that was gnawing at him — tried feebly to explain all that needed explaining — tried desperately to win just one tiny little word of forgiveness from her. . . But she had been too deeply wounded to be able to relent toward him — yet.

She was gentle toward him, but she sent him away in despair . .

By Bill Liddicoett

The rally last Thursday evening was a grand success.

Although the boys were beaten last Friday evening, they scored a moral victory in getting so many of our home town fans out. We had more rooters than Auburn. Keep up the good work, your grand support will really keep that ball club rolling. The game started out rather disastrous at the opening kick off when Auburn ran the ball all the way back for a touchdown, but the kick was blocked. Auburn scored again in the early part of the first quarter. Our boys were dazzled by the lights, but when they got used to them they held Auburn scoreless until the middle of the fourth period when they again scored, the conversion was again unsuccessful. El Dorado scored in the third period on a long pass and a run by Voorhies. Sargent made the conversion. So this week a still game Cougar team will be out for "blood," and here's hoping they get it. Don't forget to keep up the good work and help the boys beat Nevada City.

Louis Brunello's leg was improved enough that he could play Friday. "Dutch" Duncan also felt well enough to start. Lucky break for us.

Two Cheer Leaders

At our game last Friday we had two yell leaders who started Thursday night at the rally. They were Lavonne Nolan and Bonnie Theiler. They did a swell job. What do you say we "draft" them for the permanent job. Here's one person who thinks they would do a swell job. So let's keep them, we need 'em.

Basketball

Last Thursday the boys weighed in for basketball and found the "B" rating went up 12 points. This made an awful lot of players come on the "A" division, who expected to go "B". Bad luck boys, next time try reducing.

The Girls League had a successful meeting last Thursday.

Senior Play

The Senior Play has been picked and rehearsals set for Wednesday evening. The name of the play is "Second Fiddle" and is written by the author of "Mistakes at the Blakes" the successful play produced by last year's senior class.

58 GOVERNMENTAL UNITS NOTED IN COUNTY BY TAXPAYER GROUP

The people of El Dorado county have at leeast 58 different governmental units to serve them, a survey of governmental units in California counties, just made public by California Taxpayers' Association shows. In addition to the county government, the association found, there are: one incorporated city and 52 elementary school districts, one high school district, and at least three special districts in the county. The last figure is incomplete, the association stated, data for many types of special districts are not centrally collected.

Over the state as a whole, the association found, there are at least 4,287 different governmental units, with about a thousand special districts not reporting centrally and not included. In addition to the state government and the fifty-eight county governments, there are 284 incorporated cities, 2,533 elementary school districts, 266 high school districts, 39 unified school districts, 14 junior college districts, and at least 1,094 special districts.

CONGRESS OF A MIND TO LET RUSSIA SHARE LEASE-LENDING

WASHINGTON, (UP) — House Republican and Democratic leaders today predicted that the new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation would pass without any substantial change and without serious opposition.

Leaders of both parties believed the campaign to bar use of the funds to aid Soviet Russia was collapsing.

Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., ranking Republican member of the appropriations committee, who will vote for the bill but will not seek to reduce the amount, predicted that the anti-Russian aid amendment would not get more than 25 votes.

Reps. Stephen A. Day, R., Ill., Robert F. Jones, R., Ohio, and Wm. P. Lambertson, R., Kans., planned to support an amendment that would bar lend-lease aid to Russia, but they have not decided yet who will offer it.

General debate on the bill will close this afternoon. Amendments will be considered tomorrow with a prospect of passage by tomorrow night.

BOSC PEARS SERVED 400 FOOT MARKET EXECUTIVES IN PROMOTIONAL DEMONSTRATION BY TRI-STATE PEAR BUREAU

Golden ripe, ice cold Bosc pears were tasted by approximately 400 super market executives, many editors of women's food columns and produce managers of local super markets at the very successful super market convention recently held in Philadelphia, according to E. R. Pooley, president-manager of the Oregon-Washington-California Pear Bureau. One hundred pear slicers were given to market operators by Roy Webster and Tom Boyd, pear bureau representatives in active charge of the booth.

"Conditioned Bosc Pears" a sign prominently displayed in the booth brought many inquiries from visitors, Boyd reports. He adds:

"This inquiry gave up splendid opportunity to discuss at length our pear conditioning program and in practically every case, it was thought well worthwhile. Many operators pledged their support to our pear program."

Literature on the proper handling of fall and winter pears was distributed and publicity in the women's column of the Philadelphia Record, one of the leading Philadelphia morning newspapers was promised as soon as the heavier supplies of pears arrived.

"Aren't they delicious," and "What do you call them?" the two familiar remarks at pear bureau demonstrations were the result of cutting the pear with the pear slicer and passing out samples. Recipe books were also given out.

With so many large market operators in attendance from all over the country, Boyd felt that the opportunity to discuss pear marketing problems was an excellent one for the promotion of winter pear sales. Many weeks of travelling and considerable expense would have been required to meet so many persons who would be vitally interested in the marketing of winter pears.

COPY OF WHITE HOUSE LETTER RELEASED IN BERLIN

WASHINGTON (UP) — Officials were concerned today about the way Germany obtained a personal communication from President Roosevelt to Josef Stalin, the Soviet premier.

A version of the letter was first made public in Berlin yesterday. Late in the day, the White House released the letter that had been sent to Stalin, and said the German version was altered from the original to achieve "propaganda objectives."

Somewhere between Washington and Moscow, or in either of those places, the German espionage system apparently obtained a copy of the letter.

SACRAMENTO WOMAN DOCTOR, NEARING 101ST BIRTHDAY, CALLED BY DEATH

Soviet Armies Facing Test

shal Klementi Voroshilov's armies are pinned down at Leningrad. To the south, Berlin added, the command of Marshal Semyon Budenny has evaporated under the sledge hammer blows which have carried the Nazis into the Donets basin and to the gateway of the Caucasus.

The German victory claims were announced with a fanfare hardly before equalled. The high command issued a sweeping communique claiming that in the deep breakthroughs of the central front from Vyazma to Bryansk three full Russian armies have been surrounded and German forces are advancing remorselessly, having crushed the Russian power of resistance.

In Moscow it was asserted that the Germans are suffering "ghastly losses" in the battles around Vyazma, Bryansk and Orel. The attack at Vyazma was said to have been brought to a jarring halt by fierce defense action. Troops in that area which were encircled by the initial momentum of the Nazi advance were said to have extricated themselves and reformed their lines.

Orel was said to have been yielded to the Germans after a three-day battle in which the Germans suffered so heavily they were forced repeatedly to withdraw and reorganize. The Nazis, however, finally managed to fight their way into the town and the Russians withdrew slightly north of the city at which place fighting of the heaviest nature is now in progress.

The communist party newspaper, Pravda, said bluntly that the most serious threat of the war confronted Soviet forces and that there was no means of overestimating the gravity of the threat not only to Russian armies but to great masses of Soviet war industry both in the region around Moscow and in the Donets neighborhood.

On the internal front refugee Jugoslav sources in London estimated 180,000 Serbs and Jews have been imprisoned, tortured or killed in Jugoslavia. Russian reports declared 1,000 more Poles have been shot, 60,000 sent to prison and another batch of 540,000 sent to Germany for forced labor.

MISS LILLIAN KELLEY RENEWS DEMOCRAT SUBSCRIPTION

Many of the older residents of the county will remember as an old friend and former teacher, Miss Lillian Kelley, who writes from Walnut Creek to renew her subscription this week.

Miss Kelley reports she "always enjoys receiving The Democrat as it brings back old memories."

She resides with her niece, Alice V. Bishop, also a former teacher in the county. Another niece, Amy Sainz, lives at Rattlesnake Bar and a nephew, Aubrey Johnston, is in Sacramento.

Miss Kelley's sisters also taught in El Dorado County. Alice Kelley Johnston taught at Salmon Falls and Hortense Kelley taught at Uniontown and at Webber Creek and substituted for Miss Lillian Kelley at Cave Valley.

Miss Lillian Kelley also taught at Salmon Falls, where she resided with Mr. and Mrs. Gains, whose descendants still reside at Salmon Falls.

Miss Kelley was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kelley, pioneers in Placer County who settled at Manhattan Bar in 1852 and it was there Miss Kelley was born.

At this time, she owns the old family home there, and also has extensive holdings in Kern County and cotton land in Tulare County.

17 IN COUNTY, 13,100 IN STATE HAVE LOST DRIVING LICENSES THIS YEAR FOR DRIVING WHILE DRUNK

The Department of Motor Vehicles has revealed that 21 persons living in El Dorado County lost their driving licenses by suspensions, revocation, cancellation or probationary orders during the first eight months of 1941.

Of this number 17 were involved in drunken driving cases. The total was made up of the following: Suspensions 11; Revocations and Cancellations, 3; probationary licenses 7.

For the entire state a total of 22,935 persons lost their licenses on various offenses and for various periods during the same months.

Illustrating the seriousness of the drunken driving situation, Paul Mason, chief of the Division of Drivers licenses, said 13,100 or approximately 60 per cent of all cancellations and suspensions were on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Mason said this number would be likely to increase in future as a new law makes it mandatory to revoke the license of any person convicted three times or more of driving while intoxicated.

The figures announced by the department do not include court cases in which drivers were deprived of their licenses for various causes.

Sacramento Takes Edge In Playoff Series

SACRAMENTO, (UP)—The Sacramento Solons today lacked just one game of clinching the president's cup in the Pacific Coast League Shaughnessy playoff.

The Solons took a three to two series edge by defeating the Seattle Rainiers 4 to 1 last night behind the fine four-hit pitching of veteran Tony Freitas while his mates were pecking away at the offerings of Hal Turpin and Dewey Soriano.

John Buck, of the forest service, was in the Silver Lake vicinity on Thursday.

The Misses Barbara and Bonnie Lovell, accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Volz, spent last weekend in San Francisco, visiting with relatives. Mrs. Mable Lovell drove up Sunday evening from the bay district, bringing the wanderers home again.
